SHOOTING NEAR FEARIS.

Frank Tully Fired Twice at George Kelley, Wounding Him.

George Kelley and Frank Tully were neighbors, residing on the East Fork of Cabin creek near Fearis.

About a year ago Kelley went to Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Tully, and the two remained there until a short time ago.

Upon their return it may be imagined that Tully's love for Kelley was not of the Pythian vintage.

Wednesday night he got his eye on Kelley, and was not long in getting his eye on the sight of a Winchester as well.

Kelley took refuge behind a tree; but he was bigger than the tree and Tully first took a whack at the front part that hung over the edge, the ball grazing Kelley's stomach. The next shot was sent after the other part of George, the ball entering his side, producing a wound that may prove fatal.

Marshall Dixon has a warrant for Kelley for stealing a buggy in Ohio, from which state he is a fugitive from justice.

CUTTING AT MAYSLEICK.

Dick Riggs Slashed Bob Prather Across the Face.

A man named Royce, who resides in the Mayslick neighborhood, gave a dance Christmas night at his home. Among the guests were Bob Prather and Dick Riggs, who had been drinking.

About 10 o'clock Prather, without warning, pulled a revolver and fired through the floor, at which performance Mr. Royce requested him to leave the house.

Not moving fast enough Mr. Riggs was called upon to help eject Prather. In the yard Prather again attempted to draw his gun, when Riggs slashed him across the face with his knife.

The next morning Riggs was arrested by Constable Alexander charged with cutting with intent to kill and at his examining trial was held in $100 bail, which, not being able to give, he was remanded to Jail.

The prisoner heretofore has borne a very good reputation, while Prather had served a term in the Penitentiary.

Among the lots of thousands who have seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and influenza during the past few years, to our knowledge, no one has been able to give a more glowing recommendation than that of Thos. "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for its safety in all cases, and it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also constitutes a sure remedy of lung disease in pneumonia." For sale by J. Jan. Wood & Son, Druggists.

The big tunnel on the Great Northern Railroad, in the state of Washington, is ready for use a month earlier than had been anticipated. The "bore" is 13,221 feet in length, one of the longest ever made, and it has taken three years to complete it. It has made two towns, Cascade and Arlington, on opposite sides of the mountain.

Probably 50,000,000 pounds of turkey are consumed every Christmas in the United States, that at 10 cents a pound, would represent a value of $5,000,000. Cranberries come to at least a million dollars a year, and are surely not an over-estimate to suppose that 10,000,000 bunches would come to $1,000,000, much in reality they cost more.

Eastern capitalists with unlimited capital at their command are planning to develop Northern Georgia on a huge scale. They have purchased 50,000 acres of land in five counties which are said to be rich in mineral resources. As yet there is no railroad in that section, but negotiations are under way for lines which will aid the enterprise mentioned.

Two hundred million dollars is the maximum sum the Administration wants the powers to demand of China as indemnity, yet the figures are likely to be many times that amount. Tom Tom to Tatters TOM CAMPBELL'S FABRIC.
How His Star Witnesses Have Been Annihilated.
KENTUCKY DONE WITH THE SHYSTER
Louisville, Dec. 31.
If Secretary of State Cabot Powers gets a new trial, and there seems every good reason to believe he will, the second hearing of the case will be conducted in a vastly different fashion from the first.
Originally the star witnesses for the prosecution were Finley Anderson, Duane Sinclair, George Franklin Weaver, Robert Noaks, Ed Steffey, F.
Wharton Golden and W. H. Culton. Of these only two, possibly three, are now available for Colonel Tom C. Campbell's purposes, providing Colonel Tom C. Campbell ever again takes any hand in the case. Nor can the surviving "stars" in the trial of any of the "stars" be counted upon to furnish any very effective testimony.
It is now becoming more apparent every day that Colonel Campbell reared a temporary structure in his management of the case against Cabot Powers.
It was not designed to stand the test of time and the trial of acts. His was a planned prosecution, so to speak.
Colonel Campbell dealt not with the future. He wanted a conviction, and wanted it quick. He got it, and that satisfied him.
His tools were left to look after themselves. Indeed, one of them got into difficulties before the case went to the jury.
Hardly was the verdict returned before the fabric of the prosecution began to crumble in other places. Honeycombed with perjury and fraud, it went to pieces under the blows of public indignation and private inquiry, like a pasteboard boat in a cataract.
To begin with, there were seven so-called "stars." Of these the first to succumb was George Franklin Weaver.
His guilt was so apparent and his stories so transparent that within three days after he had testified he was in jail on the charge of false swearing.
Even if he escapes the Penitentiary it is not likely that he will ever be called upon by Colonel Campbell to repeat his fictions in Court.
The next to fall was Finley Anderson, who, in a sworn affidavit, has confessed that his testimony was a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end, and that it was bought and paid for by Tom Campbell and Arthur Goebel.
Then on last Saturday The Evening Post published the recantation of Bob Noaks, made in the presence of reputable witnesses. In this statement Noaks says that he was mentally and morally irresponsible when he took the stand against Powers. This, he adds, was the natural result, first, of fright, and second, of the liquor which Tom Campbell had poured into him in order that his moral sensibilities might be blunted and his tongue loosened. In addition Noaks completes the task which Anderson began and lays bare the inner workings of Campbell's "hang and dam" conspiracy.
Next came Ed Steffey, the Frankfort messenger boy, and Duane Sinclair, the former manager of the Postal Telegraph Company's office at Frankfort.
For reasons which are sufficient, but which have not as yet been explicated in print, Powers' lawyers felt confident that neither Steffey nor Sinclair will be present as witnesses against Powers.
In the event that his case is remanded to the lower Court. Even if these two should offer to testify, the defense will be prepared to thoroughly impeach them.
Therefore, it will be seen that there remain to Colonel Campbell only his two original standbys, F. Wharton Golden and W. H. Culton. Among the score of reputable persons who have assisted in destroying Golden's remarkable testimony are his only sister and his brother-in-law, a Minister of the Gospel. Besides, the recent confessions of Noaks and Anderson put Golden in a still worse plight than he occupied before.
Culton has been as thoroughly impeached and contradicted as Golden.
